

I want to live at Sidney Pacific.
How do I get there?

I am a new graduate student. That is, I have never been registered at MIT in any capacity.

I am not a new graduate student. That is, I have previously been registered at MIT.

Enter the first-year student housing allocation process.

Enter the continuing student status housing allocation process.

Become a Sidney Pacific officer

If you are lucky, you are assigned a non-renewable one year contract to live in Sidney Pacific. You have first-year housing status.

You are guaranteed housing for the duration of your term as an officer. You have officer status (but not continuing housing status).

Your contract will expire on August 15. You are responsible for rent up to this date.

If you are lucky, you are given a renewable assignment to live in Sidney Pacific that allows you to renew your housing contract each year until you graduate. You have continuing housing status

After two years of service in the government and upon recommendation of the housemasters, you are awarded continuing housing status.

You may move out earlier than your contract states, without penalty, for the following reasons: you graduate, go on medical leave, withdraw, have a change of family status, go on a department-required internship, or take non-resident status.